Taylor Gets LBJ's Orders For Viet Nam

Supply Routes Presumed Main War Objective

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, armed with fresh orders from President Johnson, will fly back to South Viet Nam shortly to work out new plans for intensifying the war against Communist guerrillas.

Presumably, prospective new military actions could include air strikes against the Communist supply lines that run from North to South Viet Nam through the mountainous jungles of Laos.

A White House statement reporting on the conference Johnson held Tuesday with Taylor and other top policy advisers withheld details on prospective actions.

Significantly, however, the statement emphasized Red use of the supply lines through Laos and said there is evidence of increasing support to the Viet Cong rebels from Communist North Viet Nam. The statement also said that Taylor would "consult urgently" with the South Viet Nam government on what should be done to improve the war effort.

Against the background of mounting expectation of decisions on whether the war should be broadened beyond the boundaries of South Viet Nam, the White House statement summarized military, political and economic conditions in the country and said:

"The meeting reviewed the accumulating evidence of continuing and increased North Vietnamese support of the Viet Cong and of North Vietnamese forces in, and passing through, the territory of Laos in violation of the Geneva accords of 1962.

"The President instructed Ambassador Taylor to consult urgently with the South Vietnamese government as to measures that should be taken to improve the situation in all its aspects.

"The President reaffirmed the basic U.S. policy of providing all possible and useful assistance to the South Vietnamese people and government in their struggle to defeat the externally supported insurgency and aggression being conducted against them."

Taylor returned to Washington from Saigon a week ago for consultations, and in an interview with Life magazine in advance of his return said air strikes against the Red supply lines in Laos could contribute to the eventual defeat of the Viet Cong guerrillas. He also said there could be advantages in attacking bases in North Viet Nam that are sources of infiltrating supplies and trained men.

The White House statement, while spotlighting the passage of men and supplies through Laos, made no reference to the bases in North Viet Nam. This was generally taken as an indication that if the military operations of the U.S.-supported South Vietnamese are now to be broadened the first phase at least would be concerned with trying to cut the flow of supplies and reinforcements rather than bombing the bases.

White House press secretary George Reedy said that Taylor would remain in Washington for two or three days and would have another meeting with the President before returning to his post. His consultations later Tuesday and today were primarily with officials of the State and Defense departments and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Ringo Improves Minus Tonsils

LONDON (AP) — Ringo Starr, the Beatles' drummer, had his tonsils removed today. A hospital spokesman said his condition was satisfactory.

Hundreds of fans of the 24-year-old mophead telephoned a special number — Covent Garden 2332 — for news of their favorite. The recorded voice of Anne Collingham, an employee of the Beatles' manager, told them the good news.

Ringo expects to be in the hospital about 10 days.

"One thing is certain," he said. "Nobody is getting my tonsils as a souvenir. Believe me, I'm going to have them burned."

No Great Change Seen Here in Extension Operation

Pickaway County is one of seven counties that will be affected by a new Extension Service Center scheduled to be opened in Washington C. H. Jan. 1 when the State Extension Service reorganization plan goes into effect.

County Extension Agent George Hamrick said today the reorganizational plan will not greatly affect the local office.

Under the new plan, funds to pay the salary of 4-H agents will be paid by each county. However, Pickaway County has not had a separate 4-H agent for more than a year.

Hamrick indicated the County Board of Commissioners probably will be approached sometime after the first of the year to see if the local solons will approve funds to provide Pickaway County with a 4-H agent.

The salary of a 4-H agent has been set at $6,000. At present, the county contributes less than $10,000 to the local Extension Service to defray office expenses, secretarial salaries, supplies and travel by the agents.

The salaries of the extension agent and the home economics agent are paid by the state. Hamrick noted that more specialized information will be available to farmers through the new Extension Service Center at Washington C. H.

Carl Blue, Portage County Extension Service agent for the past two years, will be the area farm management agent; Dave Gerber, Putnam County agent, will be the area swine agent; Al Baxter, Clinton County agent, will be the area agronomy agent; and Larry Rhonemus, Champaign County agent, will be the area 4-H agent.

Under present plans, four more persons will be added to the staff of the service center within the next three years. These would include an animal scientist, a woman nutritionist and family life specialist, another 4-H agent and an associate supervisor.

Washington C. H. was selected for the Center because of its location in the area, which includes Pickaway, Fayette, Clinton, Madison, Greene, Clark and Champaign counties.

Taft Decides: No Recount

Young's Victory Wouldn't Change

CINCINNATI (AP) — Robert Taft Jr. has decided against a vote recount of the Nov. 3 election in which he lost a bid for the U.S. Senate seat once held by his father, the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Republican Taft, now completing his first term as Ohio's congressman-at-large, lost the election by 16,827 votes to Sen. Stephen M. Young, a Democrat elected to his second Senate term.

Taft, who had maintained silence, said Tuesday night that although the official canvass "confirms that it was very close, on the basis of careful study of each county, my campaign organization and I am convinced that a recount would not change the ultimate outcome."

The 47-year-old Cincinnati said he had "no definite personal plans" for the future, but that he expects to "continue an active interest in public affairs."

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown released the official canvass Tuesday and it showed Young won by 50.2 per cent. Young got 1,923,608 votes to Taft's 1,906,781, the canvass showed.

Many polls and others had predicted a victory for Taft over the 74-year-old Young.

Taft said he sent a telegram to Sen. Young "congratulating him on his victory and wishing him well in his Senate term."

"Since the results show that I ran more than a million votes ahead of the national ticket, I am gratified even though it was a loss, and I want to thank all who worked so hard in support of my candidacy," Taft said.

"While many factors affected the result, it is particularly noteworthy that the total vote in Ohio decreased by about 175,000 from 1960 in spite of a sizeable increase in eligible voters," he added. "This means once more that too many voters stayed home, especially those who might have voted for Republican candidates at all levels."

Ken Keating's Future Tops Rumor Mill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will Sen. Kenneth B. Keating go to Hollywood next year and become a movie actor?

That's one of the jobs rumored for the 64-year-old New York Republican since he was defeated for re-election Nov. 3 by Robert F. Kennedy.

But all the affable silver-haired senator will say is that he has had no direct contact with anyone from Hollywood.

"Of course," he mused with tongue-in-cheek during an interview. "There's a dearth of mature stars in Hollywood now."

He was one of several unpaid senatorial consultants who helped producer Otto Preminger with the movie "Advise and Consent" several years ago.

In addition to a Hollywood job, Keating has also been rumored for baseball commissioner, ambassador to Israel and an unspecified post with the Johnson administration.

He said, however, that no one has ever approached him about the baseball commissioner's job and no one in the administration has contacted him directly or indirectly about a government assignment.

Keating plans to withhold a decision on his plans until next year.

Dean Jagger III, Leaves TV, Films

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Dean Jagger is taking an indefinite medical leave from MGM Studios and also is abandoning, temporarily, his role as the high school principal in the "Mister Novak" television series.

A spokesman said Tuesday that Jagger, 61, was advised to take a rest after he was bothered by a recurrent ulcer.

Junk Yard Law Meets Opposition

A city ordinance requiring the licensing of junk yards met its first formal opposition during last night's Council meeting.

Appearing before the city fathers to loudly protest the regulation was Edgar Stevens, a garbage hauler who lives at 750 N. Scioto St. He claims he does not operate a "junk yard" as the term is defined in the ordinance.

The junk yard ordinance was passed by City Council in April of this year. It sets certain requirements for operation of such businesses.

Stevens launched his denunciation by producing a copy of the junk yard ordinance that was handed him late yesterday afternoon by Police Chief Robert Temple.

THE local hauler said he could find no adequate definition of "junk yard" as it might apply to the business he maintains. He voiced the opinion that he deals in junk, in connection with his collection business, but vividly remarked that he does not operate a junk yard.

Stevens also said, as far as he could learn, "no other hauler or junk dealer has received a copy of the ordinance." He also made it known that if the city wanted a "test case" on the ordinance, he "was it."

Chief Temple, not present for the Council session, today said he was in the process of delivering copies of the ordinance to all local haulers and those who possibly could be termed junk dealers.

The chief said his purpose is to acquaint the haulers and dealers with the ordinance and give them the opportunity to determine if the law applies to them. He suggested they contact their attorneys if further interpretation should be needed.

Stevens told the solons if he found it necessary to appear before them again, he would bring an attorney with him.

The controversial ordinance was passed this year after a second reading. A similar measure was defeated by the solons in January of 1963.

THE local ordinance closely follows a state law enacted by the last session of the Ohio Legislature. Solon John Jenkins, author of the measure here, said it was designed to improve the appearance of the community and establish standard procedure in regulations.

One aspect of the ordinance pertains to erection of fences six feet in height around junk yards not properly obscured by natural objects. Stevens told councilmen he had no intentions of building such a fence at his residence.

The city regulation calls for a licensing fee of $25 for junk yards falling under province of the measure, with a cost of $10 for each yearly renewal. Stevens (Continued on Page Two)

Brazil Stops Peron Return To Argentina

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Ex-dictator Juan D. Peron arrived in Rio de Janeiro today on the first stage of his return to Argentina, but the Brazilian government refused to let him continue his journey.

"He will not go on" to Montevideo, said Joao Lampraia Gracie, chief of protocol for the Brazilian Foreign Ministry who was at the airport to meet the Iberia airliner that brought the former dictator from Madrid.

Lampraia said Peron would be returned to Madrid.

Peron had planned to fly to Montevideo, the Uruguayan capital, and transfer there to a plane for Asuncion, Paraguay. He was to take up residence in Paraguay until he felt the time ripe for him to return to Argentina.

Lampraia said Peron is persona non grata in Brazil and as such was not permitted to touch Brazilian territory. Since he had violated this, Lampraia said, he would be returned to his point of origin.

It was reported unofficially that Peron, 69, would be detained at the military section of the Rio airport until the Iberia plane heads back to Madrid tonight.

Spanish officials had indicated earlier, however, that Peron might not be allowed to return to Spain if his trip failed. They said this would be decided by the Spanish government in agreement with the Argentine government.

"But this (Peron's return to Spain) would be very difficult," one official said, "because he has openly broke the conditions under which he came to Spain."

A major condition of Peron's asylum in Spain was that he would not engage publicly in politics.

In Buenos Aires, Argentina's defense minister said the Argentine armed forces would bar any attempt to restore Peron — driven from his homeland in 1955 — to power.

President Arturo Illia was awakened during the night for an urgent meeting with Defense Minister Leopoldo Suarez, Interior Minister Juan Palmero and top army and navy officers.

"The armed forces," said Suarez, "without doubt are going to act if necessary to support the government in defense of the peace of our country."

Inspector General Roberto G. Schuller of the federal police placed infantry, mounted police and squad cars on street patrol in Buenos Aires.

Peron and his lieutenants presumably have their eyes on the election March 14 for half the Congress and provincial governors. Peron's followers, although divided, can muster an estimated 20-25 per cent of the vote.

Peron, 69, an army general, swept to power in 1946 and was re-elected in 1952. He was overthrown in a bloody military revolt on Sept. 16, 1955.

Assault Charged To Dionne Quint

MONTREAL (AP) — Marie Dionne Houle, one of the Dionne quintuplets, has been ordered to appear in municipal court on Dec. 7 on a charge of common assault.

Mrs. Houle, 30, is charged with committing assault "on the person of another female," understood to be a baby-sitter. Details were not disclosed when the charge was filed in court. Marie is the wife of Florian Houle. They have two children.

Ex-Senate Aide Refuses To Disclose Documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Baker, former secretary of the Senate Democratic majority, refused today to turn over subpoenaed documents to senators investigating an alleged political payoff from a government contract. He said they "might tend to incriminate me."

Insurance man Don B. Reynolds in sworn testimony Tuesday pictures himself as the "bag man" for Baker and politician Matthew H. McCloskey in a deal to secretly funnel money from a stadium construction contract here into the 1960 Kennedy-Johnson campaign fund.

The Senate Rules Committee had served Baker with a subpoena commanding him to bring to its hearing any documents which would shed light on the allegations.

In a strained voice, Baker testified that he had complied by bringing the documents to the hearing, but that he must "respectfully refuse" to surrender them.

"I specifically invoke this (constitutional) right against self-incrimination," Baker said, and invited the committee, if it has any evidence of unlawful actions on his part, to turn it over to a grand jury "sitting three blocks away."

On demand from Baker's attorney, the lights for television were turned out before questions were put to Baker.

Attorney Edward Bennett Williams argued that the lights served as a distraction and a harassment of Baker. The television lights were turned off during testimony of the days first witness — William M. McLeod Jr., who denied any part in or knowledge of a political payoff from the stadium construction.

McLeod, former clerk of the House of Representatives District of Columbia Committee, also denied testimony given by insurance man Don B. Reynolds to a Senate inquiry that McLeod had used his influence to win congressional approval of legislation authorizing construction of the $17 million Washington, D.C., stadium, the project from which the payoff allegedly came.

Reynolds handled the construction performance bond on the stadium after Congress finally approved it in 1960.

Reynolds swore Tuesday that Bobby Baker, the secretary to the Senate Democratic majority, and Democratic politician Matthew H. McCloskey, who held the stadium construction contract, had agreed to inflate the premium on the performance bond and funnel $25,000 of it into the Kennedy-Johnson fund.

McLeod acknowledged that he received $1,500 from Reynolds after Reynolds' insurance firm was chosen by McCloskey as broker to handle the performance bond. But McLeod insisted the money was for "past favors" and had nothing to do (Continued on Page 2)

Deadline Set In Lawsuit Against ANG

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Briefs must be filed by Jan. 5 by both sides in the Youngstown Vindicator's unfair labor practice case against the striking Local 11 of the American Newspaper Guild.

Trial examiner George Downing set the deadline Tuesday after hearing nearly two dozen witnesses for the newspaper in two days of testimony. He indicated it would be some time after Jan. 5 before he could make a finding in the case. The issue then will go before the National Labor Relations Board.

The board's finding is subject to appeal.

The Vindicator charged that during the early days of the strike the Guild conducted mass picketing at the newspaper plant, alleging that there was disturbances on the picket line and that copies of the Sunday Vindicator were confiscated and destroyed.

Thief Stole His Knitting

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — Clive Manley dropped a whole row of stitches — mentally, that is — when he returned to his parked car.

Someone had stolen his knitting needles, three sweaters and a pattern book from the unlocked vehicle, he told police Tuesday.

The sweaters were going to be a Christmas present "for my old gray-haired mother," Manley said sadly. "There's nothing to do but to start all over again. But I sure will miss that old pattern book. It can't be replaced."

Manley learned to knit more than 20 years ago, while a World War II prisoner of the Japanese. He weathered the ridicule of his fellow Navy officers and he never gave up his hobby.

Counterspies Probe KKK

Hoover Discloses FBI Infiltration

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover told Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Tuesday that the FBI has infiltrated the Ku Klux Klan and other racist groups much as it did the Communist party, it was learned after the two had chatted in the FBI director's office.

And, King told reporters after the 14-hour session, Hoover indicated arrests will be made in the next few days in the slaying of three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

King requested the meeting and Hoover agreed to it. There was no comment from the FBI director afterward, but King, a leader in the Negroes' drive for equal opportunities and rights, told newsmen: "I might say the discussion was quite amicable."

Last month, Hoover departed from his general practice of not granting interviews and told a group of women reporters King was "the most notorious liar in this country."

King, a minister and a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, had claimed FBI agents in Georgia, because they were Southerners, did not investigate complaints from Negroes.

Later, the Negro leader said Hoover "has apparently faltered under the awesome burden, complexities and responsibilities of his office."

Hoover's disclosure of FBI infiltration into racist organizations is the first to this effect. His comment that arrests in the Philadelphia slayings will be made in the next few days follows an FBI announcement of last week that "we know who is responsible."

Last Aug. 4, FBI agents found the bodies of the three rights workers — Michael H. Schwerner, 24, Andrew Goodman, 20, and James E. Chaney, 21 — in a recently built earth dam five miles southwest of the Mississippi city. They had disappeared June 21.

Last week an FBI spokesman said "it has not yet been possible to obtain evidence or confessions that would insure successful prosecution." Tuesday spokesmen for the FBI refused to pinpoint the day the arrests Hoover spoke of would be made.

Rusk Attends 2nd Meeting On U.N. Dues

Thant Credited For Preventing Assembly Clash

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk scheduled a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today in an effort to win Soviet agreement to help pay for peace-keeping operations of the United Nations.

A last-minute accord Tuesday postponing a showdown at the General Assembly opened the way for basic financial negotiations starting at a luncheon meeting of Gromyko and Rusk at the headquarters of the Soviet U.N. mission.

The opening of the twice-delayed General Assembly without a head-on clash between the United States and the Soviets was seen as a victory for Secretary-General U-Thant.

Delegates said Thant's patience and persistence brought the big powers together for one more try at getting the assembly underway without a blow-up.

U.S. sources expect Rusk and Gromyko to touch on other East-West issues besides the U.N. payments, including disarmament, trade and a U.S.-Soviet consular agreement.

The U.N. money issue had top priority. At their first meeting Monday, Rusk and Gromyko skirmished over procedure in what was termed an inconclusive session.

U.S. diplomats contended the United States gained more than it lost in Tuesday's compromise under which the General Assembly is going ahead with routine debate. Voting on important matters was put off to allow time for the backstage financial talks.

At issue is the Soviet Union's refusal to pay her U.N. assessments for the Congo and Middle East peace-keeping operations, which she says were illegal, and application of the U.N. Charter's Article 19. Article 19 says members falling two years behind in their dues — and that now includes the U.S.S.R. — shall lose their General Assembly vote.

The United States, the biggest financial contributor to the United Nations and its peace-keeping operations, says both the U.N.'s finances and its overall functioning will be gravely weakened if members can flout the charter provision at will.

The U.S. aim now is to get the Soviets to agree on a method for financing future peace-keeping operations. Washington also has reservations about the present setup in which the small-nation majority in the 115-member General Assembly can outvote the big nations footing most of the bill. It hopes to attract the Soviets with a deal giving the larger powers a bigger voice in the assembly's financial decisions.

Ex-Senate . . .

Baker was under subpoena to appear today and Maj. Lennox P. McLeod, the committee counsel, said "his attorney told me he'd be here."

But there was no indication that Baker was ready to answer any questions. The last time he appeared in the investigation of his outside business activities while secretary of the Senate Democratic majority, Baker invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify.

McLeod admitted giving Reynolds' two invoices of $1,000 each for "legal services rendered."

"Don told me to do it that way because that's the way his accountant told him to do it," McLeod said. "I never rendered any legal services."

He only got $500 the second time, McLeod testified, because "Don said he didn't have a thousand."

Reynolds testified that he gave McLeod $1,500 and told him, "It's time I shared with you."

Tuesday's public hearing was frequently marked by verbal wrangling between Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb.; Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., the committee chairman, and Lennox P. McLeod, special committee counsel.

At one point Curtis claimed McLeod was trying to "discredit" and "impeach" Reynolds' testimony and "sandbag" Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., who triggered the second round of the Baker probe with a Senate speech last September revealing what Williams called a "political payoff."

Reynolds testified he added $35,000 to the fee for acting as broker through whom the McCloskey firm's performance bond in constructing the stadium was written.

He said the understanding was that $25,000 of it would go to the Kennedy-Johnson campaign fund. His fee for services as the "bag man" would be $10,000.

The arrangement was suggested by McCloskey and Baker, Reynolds said, and was discussed in his presence.

McCloskey, former chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic National Committee and former ambassador to Ireland, has denied any knowledge of such a payoff or kickback.

Baker resigned his $19,600-a-year post as secretary to the Senate's Democrats more than a year ago. His activities are being investigated by a grand jury. After its initial investigation of his outside business activities while a Senate employee, the Rules Committee found Baker was "guilty of many gross improprieties."

And, on the same ground, Baker refused to answer questions.

Junk . . .

Councilmen, not making any definite reply to Steven's remarks, then switched to debate on a different subject, but of similar tempo.

This round of deliberation was focused on an attempt to determine the rightful ownership of a strip of land just north of Edward Road. The 50-foot strip was created when Council enacted legislation several months ago vacating a right-of-way section known as Rose Lawn Drive.

Property owners on the north side of Edward Road, represented last night by three delegates, requested the entire 50-foot strip be given to the 14 owners bordering the area.

ACCORDING to Solicitor Kenneth Robbins, a state statute provides that half the vacated strip should go to the property owners involved and half to the other adjacent owner or owners. In this case, the other 25 feet would go to owner Donald Watt.

Robbins told the delegation, headed by William D. Bills, the city had no authority to deed the vacated land to any owner. He said the proper step would be for owners to file suit in Common Pleas Court to determine rightful ownership.

Injunction Granted in Fence Dispute

Common Pleas Judge William Ammer has granted a temporary injunction in a line fence dispute between two property owners in Saltcreek Twp.

Mrs. Merle R. Penn, Route 1, was granted the restraining order against Saltcreek Twp. trustees and County Auditor Marvin Rhoads. Trustees listed as defendants are Donald Strous, Fred Delong, Carl Anderson and Donald Maxson, clerk.

The trustees erected one-half of a line fence that divides property belonging to Mrs. Penn and Kenneth Wolford.

Mrs. Penn alleges in her petition that the fence was constructed at a cost of $380.56 and that her property is to be assessed for the amount.

The petition claims that the portion of fence erected was the half that should have been maintained by Wolford and that Mrs. Penn's half was kept in a good state of repair.

She is represented in the suit by Richard W. Penn a local attorney.

October Sales Of Bonds Listed

October sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Pickaway County totaled $52,456 according to William D. Radcliff, county chairman.

The county attained 84.7 per cent of its yearly sales goal with total E and H purchases to date of $665,228, Radcliff said.

Sales exceeded $23.2 million in Ohio, which raised the total 1964 sales to date to $254 million. Ohio continued to meet its expected sales goal and has achieved 84.2 per cent of its 1964 quota.

18-Year-Olds Take Exams

Three 18 year-old registrants of the Pickaway County Selective Service Board were sent to Ft. Hayes, Columbus, today for pre-induction examinations.

They were Richard L. Giffen, Route 1; Richard L. Clark, New Holland; and Curtiss G. Lemaster, Route 2, Ashville.

According to Mrs. Lucile Warren, board clerk, the order to report for armed forces physical examination was issued in conjunction with a program for 18-year-old registrants who are not in school, to determine if they are qualified for service.

If the 18-year-olds are found qualified for service it does not mean that they will be ordered for induction at this time, Mrs. Warren noted. If they are found not qualified for service by reason of failing the written test, they will receive a letter of referral and counseling, if needed, to assist them in formulating their plans for the future.

Pay Hike Bill Tops 48 States

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers have taken the first step toward making Ohio's Legislature the second highest paid in the nation.

If a bill passed Tuesday night by the House goes through the Senate unchanged and is signed by the governor, lawmakers' salaries would jump from $5,000 to $8,000 a year starting with the 1965 session.

A study by the Legislative Service Commission — fact-finding arm of the Legislature — a few weeks ago indicated New York heads the list, paying its legislators $10,000 annually. If Ohio's legislative pay jumps to $8,000, it will top Massachusetts' $7,800, listed as No. 2 nationally by the commission.

Other states presently ahead of Ohio are Michigan ($7,000); California, Illinois and Pennsylvania ($6,000) and Wisconsin ($5,400).

New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, California and Pennsylvania are among 18 states which have annual legislative sessions. A resolution introduced last week, and probably up for a house vote today, would add Ohio to the list.

The $3,000 increase would boost salaries of House speaker and Senate majority leader to $10,500 and those of minority leaders to $9,250.

Rep. Edmund G. James, R-Noble, sought to amend the measure to remove pay increases for legislators, but the amendment was shouted down in voice vote.

The same bill would grant salary increases to county officials. Besides the pay bill, representatives passed and sent to the Senate Tuesday night a bill authorizing cities to increase income taxes above one per cent if a 55 per cent approving margin is obtained in any election, not just the general election.

They also agreed to a Senate bill allowing transfer of surplus money obtained by a conservancy district by sale of land or forest-mineral rights from its general fund to use for recreational facilities. It is aimed specifically at helping the Muskingum Conservancy District.

Seven bills, all with emergency clauses making them effective as soon as they complete the legislative trip and are signed instead of 90 days later, were passed. Six, sent on to the Senate, would:

Authorize the state Division of Mines to try to prevent through regulation the pollution of water by waste from oil and gas wells.

Allow the Mines Division to increase its deputy oil and gas well inspector staff from three to six (at an estimated initial annual cost of $22,000) because of increased drilling activity in Ohio.

Combine the state divisions of forestry and reclamation, both under the Natural Resources Department, into a single division with authority to enforce strip-mining regulations.

Modify the Conservancy District Act so property owners would be notified by mail of appraisals and assessments and have ample opportunity to complain and appeal.

Permit townships to join with cities and counties in creating port authorities, a measure intended at the moment to help Erie and Ashtabula counties.

Correct a 1963 law to specifically allow Ohio's department of development to receive federal planning grants in working with communities.

The seventh, already passed without dissent in the Senate, authorizes sale of 353½ acres of farmland from the 1,050-acre Mansfield Reformatory at $1.099 an acre to Empire Reeves Steel Corp. for industrial expansion.

Growing U.N.

Changes which have taken place among world political divisions in the last two decades are dramatically reflected in the membership rolls of the United Nations. When 51 countries subscribed to the UN charter in January, 1946, all had fought the Axis powers, or had at least remained neutral.

The UN headquarters was designed for a maximum occupancy of 70 members, a limit considered adequate. But it wasn't long until membership requirements were eased, capped by a 1955 decision to admit any nation of the world except a few whose political legitimacy was questioned.

About this time another, more significant change began to take place in the world. New countries began emerging from the continents of Africa and Asia by the dozens, and the end is not in sight. The 1964 session of the UN will host a greater number of members that have become independent since 1964 than its total membership then.

After the admission of three former

British colonies, Malawi, Malta and Zambia — expected before the end of the year — the United Nations will have 115 members. Work on the General Assembly Hall and committee rooms last summer has provided space for an eventual membership of 126. At the present pace, this added space is likely to be occupied by the end of 1965.

The point of the UN's growth is that most of the new members are emerging countries entering for the first time into a world filled with indecision, blurred by hazy goals and torn by opposing loyalties. Most of the additions to the world family of nations lack many of the elementary foundations of sound government; some will develop them as they grow and prosper, others will fail.

But these are the nations which now hold the balance of power, numerically at least, in the U. N. Not all world problems are resolved numerically, as they are in the U.N. But each new government does add to the problems of Eastern aggression and Western solidarity.

Pity Poor Santa Claus

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks a department store Santa Claus gets tired of hearing:

"Last year I told you I wanted a bike and you brought me a pair of roller skates, ya bum. This year I want you to get it straight. Bring me a bike."

"Let me down! Let me down! I want my mama!"

"We like you to show enthusiasm, Roscoe, but don't you think you're overdoing it a bit? Just kiss the children — and let the mothers alone."

"Hey, fellow, I have to play Santa Claus for my kids on Christmas Eve. How about letting me in on a few secrets of the trade?"

"Of course, they ain't real whiskers. When he takes you up on his lap, give them a big pull — and I betcha they'll come right off in your hands."

"No, Johnny. You musn't punch Santa in the stomach. He's a nice man."

"Would you mind keeping an eye on my little boy while I go over to the lingerie department, Santa? I won't be gone more than a few moments."

"Whatever you bring me, don't bring my little brother anything at all. He's been bad — and he pulled my hair, too."

"Your 'Ho, ho, ho' sounds a little hollow this morning, Roscoe. I suggest you'd better practice up on it during your lunch hour."

"I know my little girl didn't mean to get her lollipop stuck in your whiskers, Santa. If we can just find a pair of scissors, I think I can cut it out."

"The kid next door told me that Santa Claus is really your father, but you sure don't look much like my old man to me."

"When he bends down to pick up the next little girl, Jimmy, you sneak up behind him and put this tack in his chair. I double-dog dare you."

"You ought to have had better sense than to eat a garlic bread sandwich, Roscoe. I'm afraid I'll have to dock you half a day's pay. The kids won't come within a mile of you now."

"How are you fixed for blades fatso?"

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — The cost of living continues to rise but the government assures us that this isn't inflation.

This can be confusing to multitudes of Americans who look upon inflation in terms of consumer prices. When the cost of goods and services goes up they call it inflation. Or, put the other way around, when the dollar buys less than last year, to them that's inflation.

But government economists are saying, with considerable evidence to back them up, that times are different now and so are the terms to describe conditions.

The real inflation took place during and after the war. It was considerable and painful. Today's slow if steady creep of living costs to higher ground is just part of the continuing upswing of business activity, of personal incomes, of general prosperity. Everything is bigger, but not inflated.

The same thinking applies to the current attitude toward business cycles. The economists are saying that wide and often sharp swings up and down were the traditional marks of an economy adjusting itself after a war. Today's peacetime one is different and the causes of former overheated rises and disturbing tumbles aren't present now or have little punch.

All of this also is tied into the new thinking on federal financing which will influence the budget now taking shape. Taxes can be cut when the Treasury is running a deficit, and the economy will be healthier for it. The federal debt will rise, and the annual interest on it, but the general prosperity makes up for it.

The cost of living, as measured by the government's consumer price index, rose on almost all fronts in October to hit a record 108.5 per cent of the 1957-59 average. This was 1.2 per cent higher than in October 1963. But the rise held within the range that has characterized it for most of the last four years. The government expects the rise to continue at about the same rate the rest of this year. The index means that it takes $108.50 now to buy what you could get for $100 in the 1957-59 period.

It is the steadiness of the rate of rise as much as the smallness of it that comforts the economists. To them inflation is something sharp and marked implies real deterioration in the purchasing power of the dollar.

But in the current type of rising cost of living there is no general increase in prices, just an advance in some and a drop in others, marked up charges here and there for services.

Business is still too competitive for any general price rise to have developed in recent months. Industry is expanding, but there is still enough idle capacity to prevent any shortage of goods or crimping of services.

Labor costs are going up, but so is the efficiency of making goods, so that unit costs stay remarkably stable. The number of unemployed also acts as a governor on the demands of labor, especially in the lower skilled fields.

All of this could change, and then there would be a chance for inflation of the size and speed that broke out several times in the postwar years. But just now, the economists insist, there are few signs that it will — and many indications that it won't for some time to come.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE GREAT Picasso is growing generous in his old age. An American visitor secured an audience with him this summer and raved about everything in sight. Picasso was obviously flattered. Suddenly the American retrieved a crumpled sheet from the wastebasket with an unfinished line drawing on it by the master. Reverently he asked, "Would you consider selling this to me?" "It's nothing," conceded Picasso, "but since you want it, please take it as a token of friendship — for $35,000."

An energetic gentleman spent three days of his vacation riding a bicycle from Chicago to a fishing lodge in Northern Michigan. Arrived at his destination, leg-weary but still full of beans, he was asked to comment on the relative merits of travel by bicycle and automobile. "Well," he answered, "if you're in a sedan, and you pass in the neighborhood of a skunk, you can roll up the window."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Is it possible to predict how tall a child will grow?

The family pattern of height can give parents an inkling into the probable height that their child will attain, with good health and normal nutrition.

It is said that a boy at 27 months of age and a girl at 20 months of age have probably reached half of their eventual height. It is said, too, that a boy at nine years of age and a girl at seven years have reached about three-fourths of their adult height.

There are, of course, many possible hormone and nutritional changes that make this kind of an index uncertain. Too often parents reveal to their children their own concern about height. A secure and happy child adjusts more easily if he is unusually tall or unusually short.

Does some form of disease of the prostate gland always accompany middle and old age?

Many men are unnecessarily anxious about the prostate gland. Some needlessly fear that enlargement of the gland always leads to surgery, and that the removal of the gland may affect their virility and cause impotency.

Changes in the prostate gland do tend to occur in some men as they approach late middle-age. Surgery is not always necessary. Many of these changes, inflammation, or even infections of the prostate gland can be treated and controlled by medication.

All routine physical checkups include an examination of the prostate gland. Concern about the prostate can readily be assuaged by a frank discussion with the doctor at the time of examination.

Can a person build up an immunity to colds by taking any special kind of vaccine?

Although there is no known specific vaccination against the common cold, some physicians are inclined to recommend the use of a "combined vaccine." This vaccine is one that is prepared from the most common bacteria found in the nose and throat of patients with upper respiratory infections.

The vaccine is sometimes used in the hope that the body will build up some resistance towards these bacteria. Viruses are not included in the "combined vaccine."

The opinions of physicians vary greatly about cold vaccines. Some are enthusiastic, others feel that it is of relatively little value. Your physician may feel that it does have some effectiveness in your individual case.

When a person faints, should he be slapped to arouse him?

Patients are miserable enough when they faint, without being abused by a slap in the face, a drenching with ice water, or burning whiskey poured down their throats.

When someone faints, make him comfortable. Give him smelling salts, if available. Let him lie down on his back with his head lower than his feet. Loosen tight clothing, such as ties, collars and belts. Gently wash the face with cold water. Make sure that there is sufficient ventilation. Cover him if it is cold, and seek the direction of professional help.

Laughing at Communism

By John Chamberlain

The Hearst Task Force that has been visiting the Iron Curtain capitals of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Hungary has spaded up some exciting evidence of local attempts to adapt free market incentive features to the end of making socialism work. This paradoxical turn of affairs could mean much or little, depending on a whole variety of circumstances that nobody can foresee. The satellites are assuming much greater freedom to think and plan for themselves, but progress in this freedom is obviously subject to what happens in Moscow. And Moscow, in its turn, will have to reckon with the vagaries of Red China.

From the Western point of view, the news that the Iron Curtain economies are having to experiment with profits and incentives constitutes an entirely unlooked-for propaganda victory for the Western way of life. While we have been softening the sort of stuff that goes out over such channels as Radio Free Europe and doing very little to bring the issue of Soviet imperialism before the United Nations, the Iron Curtain countries have had to admit that socialism in its more rigorous forms just doesn't work. We don't deserve our good luck in this, but there it is. The job now for our propagandistic agencies is to get that news through to nations that are on the fence in South America, in Southeast Asia and in Central Africa.

The story, as my friend Bela Fabian of the exiled Hungarian Freedom Fighters keeps pointing out, begins with the reaction of millions of oppressed people behind the Iron Curtain to the failure of the Hungarian Revolution in 1956. The rumblings of Russian tanks through the streets of Budapest were a signal that open rebellion would not work. So the word went out all the way from Prague and Warsaw to Kazakhstan in central Asia to substitute a silent slowdown for overt action. A quiet but nonetheless deadly form of sabotage has brought the masters of Communism everywhere behind the Iron Curtain to realize that they must give something to the individual if they want to keep their own jobs.

Where open defiance has failed, the seepage of ridicule is finally succeeding. Throughout Hungary, for example, a labor "decalogue" has been circulating. The "new Ten Commandments" passed around in Hungarian factories reads:

1. Laziness is responsible for one-half of your health.
2. Whatever is to be done today can be done just as well tomorrow.
3. Any matter which is not solved automatically in thirty days is not worth taking up.
4. Don't search for real lost in looking for work.
5. Failure to do a job means no mistakes, and no mistakes must win a bonus.
6. Don't be misled into working just because somebody else is on the job.
7. Don't monopolize all the space at the work bench.
8. Since wages are only minimal, working effort should correspond.
9. The factory is not a cafe, and it is not necessary to spend all one's time in it.

10. We know the axiom, "work ennobles," but who needs nobility under socialism?

This sort of stuff is deadly, and the Communists have felt compelled to take notice of it. Unfortunately from their own point of view, they have only succeeded in spreading the circulation of the "decalogue" by printing the attacks on it in their official journals.

The business of laughing socialism to death recalls the tactics of the International Workers of the World, the notorious Wobblies, of pre-World War I times. One of the Wobblies — or "I Won't Work" — songs that springs to memory went this way:

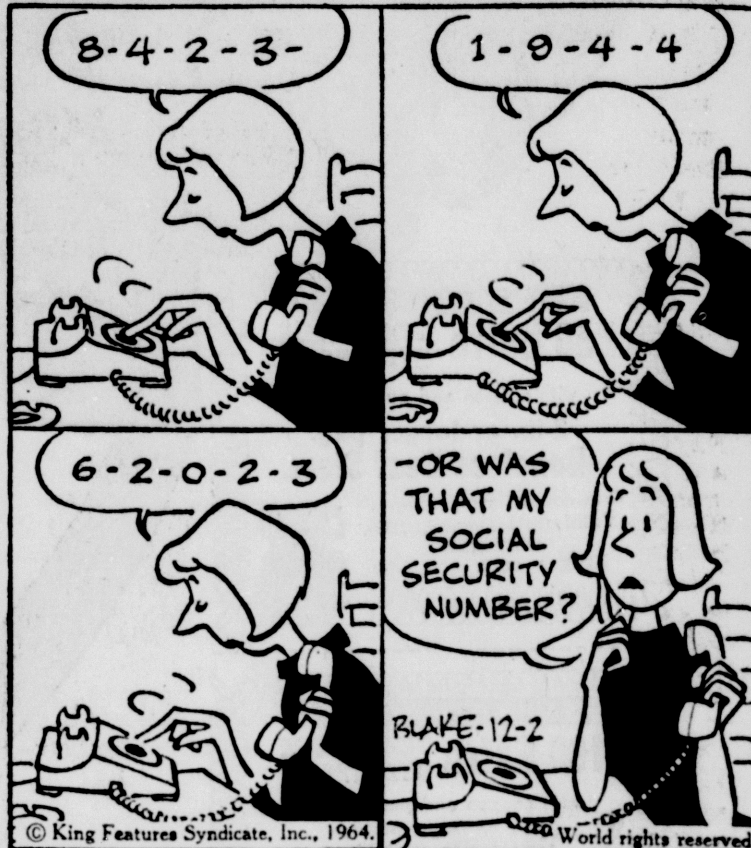

"The hours are long,
The pay is small,
So take your time,
And do them all."

The Wobblies, of course, wanted to kill capitalism. But now the irony of history has come full circle, and the Wobbly spirit is forcing at least a partial return to capitalist economics in the lands behind the Iron Curtain.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Christmas shopping hours were being observed by local stores that planned to stay open all-day Wednesday.

Ralph E. Betz, Route 4, was appointed to the Pickaway County Board of Education.

Talmer Wise, Circleville Fire Chief, issued a special request for fire safety measures during the Christmas holidays.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Circleville Fire Department was called to the Crites Farm, Route 23, to extinguish a roof blaze.

Mrs. Irvin Reid was re-elected president of the Past Chiefs Club of Pythian Sisters.

Approximately 100 women were present for the Christmas meeting of the WSCS of First Methodist Church.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Judges of Pickaway County courts and members of the Pickaway County Bar Assn. were invited to attend dedication of the new courthouse in McArthur.

Arrangements were completed for about 150 Circleville pupils to wear costumes in the big Christmas celebration sponsored by local merchants.

Highest temperature yesterday was 51 degrees and the overnight low was 48, a variation of only three degrees.

EARL PALM

Earl W. Palm was elected vice president and the office of president was relegated to Jack Clifton when Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce board directors met yesterday for a luncheon session at Boyer's Restaurant.

Palm, recently elected as one of seven new Chamber directors, steps into the post held by Clifton this year. The new president succeeds Dale DeLong at the C of C helm.

Also welcomed as new board members were Alden Bray, G. Ninde Lawson, Richard Penn and Boyd Stout. Newly elected members D. E. Goodchild and Robert Wavering were unable to be present.

The Chamber bid farewell to outgoing directors Robert Call, Dan Crabtree, Walter Garner, Fiske O'Hara, Russell Palm, Richard Shaw and David Yates.

BOTH Clifton and DeLong welcomed the new Chamber executives and commended the outgoing heads for their many services and duties performed this year. A round of applause was extended to DeLong for what the board termed an "outstanding job" in 1964.

The board unanimously moved to rehire Mrs. E. R. (Jerry) Bennett as Chamber secretary-treasurer.

Special guests for the day included personnel from this community's newest industrial family member, the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. Representing the firm were Robert J. Lanigan, William F. Connelly, John Patterson and Mike Scaletti.

In other business, Lawson reported on a telephone answering service survey here and O'Hara described highlights of the recent Ohio Chamber Annual Meeting in Columbus. DeLong named Garner and Shaw to conduct an audit of this year's Chamber records.

Plans for the annual Home Christmas Lighting contest sponsored by the Chamber are now being prepared. The program will be similar to last year's.

John Hill, Junior Chamber of Commerce president, announced that large descriptive signs will be painted for the mobile headquarters now being used by Santa Claus in the downtown area.

A brief report on Education-Business-Industry Day was presented.

sented by committee chairman Alden Bray. The program, scheduled in February, is being prepared in cooperation with city and county school officials.

Fund-Raising
Style Shows
Are Popular

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

There's fund-raising fun in a fashion show, as many a woman's club has discovered. There's work, too, but rewards can be rich.

The projects worth pondering because it appeals to members, who'll star as models or have a creative chance to show their talents in other ways, including writing or narrating the program, co-ordinating costumes and accessories, rounding up props, painting backdrops, selling tickets.

Overhead isn't high. Your costs — and check them out before you get launched — will mainly involve program and ticket printing, rental for an auditorium, decorations and music (and pianist or organist.)

Clothes come from local merchants. Invite all to participate — most probably will.

To give the show pace, costumes should cover all age groups, all figure types and all occasions. Youngsters are always a fashion show hit, so include children's clothes, too.

Sell tickets through members and spread the news via word of mouth and advertising. Participating stores will be glad to tack up a notice of the coming event and your local paper may find your plans newsworthy.

To jack up profits, the program can carry ads taken by local merchants. You'll need an eager-beaver committee to handle this phase of the project.

Get artistic members to work on decorations — a snowy mural for ski clothes, a papier-mache wedding cake for bridal wear. Big stage productions aren't needed, but a few decorative touches add atmosphere.

Appoint a committee to round up door prizes and, as with all contributions, see that every donor gets credited in the program.

Rehearse your models several times so they can breeze through the show with ease. Modeling looks easy, but isn't.

Here are some modeling tips from a professional:

1. Use plenty of eye makeup, liner, shadow and mascara, so your face won't fade out under the spotlight.

2. Walk tall and straight, putting a spring in your step. Lively background music helps no end.

3. Remember to look happy. You don't have to grin, but look relaxed. Don't sternerly concentrate on your progress down the runway or across the stage.

4. Keep an ear tuned to the commentary and point to the details mentioned — the print jacket lining, the button detail, etc.

5. Give your hands something to do so they won't hang limply.

Sometimes, you can tuck them in pockets. But the best bet of all is to carry a prop that suits the style you're showing.

If wearing a walking suit, you might lead your pet poodle down the runway. Animals always get a round of applause.

Here are other ideas for props: a cigarette holder with a sleek evening gown, balloons with a New Year's Eve formal, a bouquet with a bridal gown, binoculars or camera with a travel costume, a rag doll or a toy with a child's dress.

Props keep hands busy, keep a model's mind off stage fright and add an atmosphere of suggested activity.

The final rehearsal should be complete with make-up, accessories, lighting and music — a real run-through of the big event.

Putting on a fashion show isn't easy, but it's definitely fun and it can raise funds, making it a popular project with women's clubs from coast to coast.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Somethin's Gotta Give!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a very dear friend whom I've had for many years. She recently lost her husband and lives alone with her small dog. When my husband is on the road, I invite her to spend the night with me. We have a one-bedroom apartment with a large double bed. This friend lets her dog sleep with her at home, so naturally when she's here, she does the same. I fixed up a "bed" for the dog on the floor, but he wouldn't sleep there. My bed has begun to take on a doggy smell and my husband is complaining. My friend is very sensitive so I have to be careful not to say anything that might hurt her feelings. What can I do? I wouldn't give up her friendship for the world.

TRUE FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: If your friend enjoys sleeping with her dog, that's HER business. And if you don't mind sleeping with her AND her dog, that's your business. But you owe your husband more than you owe your friend, and if you don't know that, you belong in the doghouse. I admire your loyalty, but your husband's complaint is legitimate, so tell your friend she can't have her dog in YOUR bed, or you'll "lose" YOUR husband.

DEAR ABBY: Is there anything wrong with a girl going with a man who is LEGALLY separated from his wife? I am almost 19 and my parents have told me that they do not want me to go out with this perfectly wonderful man (he is 27) because, as far as they are concerned, he is still MARRIED and will be until he is DIVORCED. They say I will hurt my reputation if I am seen with him. Abby, he is working on getting a divorce and he says that he is sure he can get one eventually, so I don't see WHY I shouldn't date him in the meantime. I would like your opinion.

TROUBLE AT HOME
DEAR TROUBLE: IF you've marriage in mind, you could wait a long time before this man's divorce comes through. And it may never happen. Your parents are thinking of your welfare and future happiness. I agree with them.

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and am engaged to a young man who is away in the service. I work and keep myself busy and would never think of going out on him, but I get many chances. My fiance could not afford to buy me an engagement ring, but that didn't matter. We love each other and have plans to marry as soon as he gets back. My problem is trying to convince other men that I am engaged. They say that since I have no ring I am NOT engaged, and if I don't want to go out with them why don't I just say so? Does a girl need an engagement ring to be officially engaged? How can I convince these persistent men?

ENGAGED BUT RINGLESS
DEAR RINGLESS: Ring or no ring, if you and your young man have agreed to marry, you are indeed officially engaged. It's not necessary to convince anyone that you are engaged. Just convince them that you aren't interested in dating them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "C" at HALL HIGH: A good friend of mine said, "A team is where a boy can prove his courage on his own. A gang is where a coward goes to hide." The friend is an authority on teams. He is Mickey Mantle.

The wedding will take place late this month.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fog never lifted.

As the American-backed war against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam steadily deteriorated there was a dense fog over this country's plans, if any, for saving the chaotic situation.

Then the U.S. ambassador to Saigon, Maxwell D. Taylor, came home to talk to President Johnson. After they met Tuesday the White House issued a statement which indicated neither a solution nor a new idea.

This doesn't mean the two men didn't reach a decision on how to save Viet Nam and perhaps all Southeast Asia from communism. But they were very careful in the vaguely worded statement not to say so.

By their very vagueness they left themselves enormous room for a far tougher American policy — if that's what they have in mind — but this becomes understandable only if you can remember the background.

The White House statement said:

"The President reaffirmed the basic U.S. policy of providing all possible and useful assistance to the South Vietnamese people and government in their struggle to defeat the externally supported insurgency and aggression being conducted against them."

"It was noted that this policy accords with the terms of the joint congressional resolution of Aug. 10, 1964, which remains in full force and effect."

When North Vietnamese PT boats attacked two U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin last August, Johnson promptly ordered American planes to retaliate by bombing North Vietnamese coastal bases, patrol boats and oil installations. That was Aug. 4.

This attack spread over five hours and 100 miles of coast. The next day Johnson asked Congress to give him advance approval for any steps he thought necessary in the Southeast Asia predicament. Congress obliged.

It approved a resolution authorizing Johnson to "take all necessary steps, including use of the armed forces," to assist South Viet Nam or any other country under the protection of the Southeast Asia collective defense treaty which asked for help in defense of its freedom. Although Johnson said "the United States intends no rashness and seeks no wider war," this resolution was a green light. The fact that he referred to it Tuesday could mean he now intends far more drastic action than anything this country has attempted yet.

But, if so, it almost certainly means widening the war, which is what Johnson said in August he didn't intend to do. There was no hint of this in Tuesday's statement but then, of course, it might be poor strategy to telegraph a punch to the Communists ahead of time.

Yet, all through 1964 Johnson has given the impression of a man reluctant to do anything different from what has been done in the past and what has been done was limited even though the war crumbled day by day.

Johnson's hesitancy about broadening the war is understandable, although hesitancy may lose it. If, for instance, North Viet Nam were bombed, Red China might come to its aid, thus turning a small war into an American-Chinese war. Meanwhile, it's not just the Red guerrillas who are frustrating the American efforts so far. The South Vietnamese themselves are doing it, slowly sinking their country into chaos with their own instability and riots against their government.

The White House statement — that "the President reaffirmed the basic U.S. policy of providing all possible and useful assistance to the South Vietnamese people" — is a repetition of what he said last Jan. 1.

He promised the Vietnamese that American forces and material — "as needed" — would be kept in South Viet Nam to help them in "achieving victory."

At other times in 1964 he promised this country "would stand firm" in Viet Nam and that withdrawal was "strategically unwise and morally unthinkable." At the same time he said enlargement of the war would be "reckless."

Film Critic Contends Movies Falling Apart

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Are movies going to pieces?" asks an article in the Atlantic Monthly by Pauline Kael, who proceeds to answer, "yes."

Miss Kael, who is billed as an author, lecturer and authority on films, criticizes the growing lack of logic in movies, even the most expensive ones. She cites the swift and unexplained ending of "Bridge on the River Kwai"; the garbled plot of "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane"; the utter confusion of "55 Days at Peking"; the sudden clairvoyance of Cleopatra in the film of that name; the puzzling story turns of "The Cardinal."

"Audiences used to have an almost rational passion for getting the story straight," writes the critic. "Although the movies might be banal or vulgar, they were rarely incoherent. A movie had to tell some story that held together; a plot had to parge."

She concludes: "Movies are going to pieces; they are disintegrating, and the something called cinema is not movies raised to an art but rather movies diminished, movies that look 'artistic.' Movies are being stripped of all the 'nonessentials' — that is to say, faces, action, details, stories, places, everything that makes them entertaining and joyful."

She's right you know. The one thing that impresses a reviewer who sees the major output of the studios is the sloppiness of the product. Today's films are filled with incongruities, pointless jokes, technical errors, and anachronisms that any bright 11th-grade English student could correct in the script.

Why is this so?

The answer seems to lie in the abdication of authority by the major studios. Bosses like Louis B. Mayer and Harry Cohn were despotic and crude, but they did control things. They and their deputies insisted that a script be finished before shooting started, that the story should be understandable and the casting apt, and that the schedule proceed in a businesslike manner.

"Today, people in Hollywood are more interested in making deals than in making movies," said a top executive.

The Wheeler-Dealers have moved into the industry, setting up packages to find a buyer, then moving on to the next deal. The film makers are left to their own devices, with no steady hand to guide them.

The influence of European film makers has been chaotic. Working on scant budgets, Italian and French directors have been able to indulge their own whimsies. The results are often incomprehensible to the general public, but hailed by highbrow critics. Hungry for praise, American directors have sought to emulate the Europeans, with dismal results.

Miss Kael predicts gloomily: "Cinema, I suspect, is going to become so rarified, so private in meaning, and so lacking in audience appeal that in a few years the foundations will be desperately and hopelessly trying to bring it back to life, as they are now doing with the theater."

"WHERE BARGAIN'S ARE ALWAYS AVAILABLE"

Border Town Has True West Flavor

Lines on the ceiling of McDermitt's bar shows where Oregon and Nevada cut through the structure.

By RALPH FRIEDMAN
Central Press Association
Correspondent

McDERMITT, Nev. — Bret Harte's legendary "Wingdam" in the fabled Gold Rush country, couldn't be stranger than the White Horse Inn here.

This colorful hostelry, the only hotel for at least 74 miles in any direction, has its front porch in Oregon. Slot machines are illegal in Oregon, so guests play the one-armed bandits in Nevada and sleep in Oregon. The Oregon-Nevada border, marked on the first floor ceiling, runs right through the hotel, nipping off the northern edge of the bar.

For half a century the two-story, verandahed inn, built as the Commercial Hotel, has been an oasis of the desert and a cattlemen's rendezvous. Ranchers think nothing of driving in 50 miles to pick up their mail or groceries, or just to meet each other over a cup of coffee or a glass of beer.

The land out here is huge, open and sparsely settled. In this vastness, accommodations that would mystify city folk are pieced together. For instance, ranchers and sheep herders north of the state border, in Oregon, get their mail at McDermitt, Nev.

Still odder, the "suspended" McDermitt, Ore., school board, which governs a district bigger than Rhode Island, sends all its 12 boys and girls to the McDermitt, Nev., schools. The nearest Oregon school for most of the youngsters is at Arock, nearly 100 miles north.

A paved road, U. S. 95, runs through McDermitt (Pop. about 150). This is the only paved road for so many miles that nobody out here bothers to count the distance. Winnemucca, Nev. (U. S. 40, the highway to Salt Lake City), is 74 miles south, and apart from a few trails leading to ranches in Paradise Valley, the only sign of habitation in all that distance is at Orvovada, 44 miles north of Winnemucca.

However, the country is not lifeless. Antelope lope in the fringes of woods and birdwatchers can have a field day, what with so many species and so little traffic.

To the east, in Toiyabe National Forest, are mountains soaring almost 10,000 feet high — a strong contrast to the wastelands on the west, where cattle on the Applegate Cutoff, 115 years ago, trudged hock deep in grimy dust.

North of McDermitt the first town is Burns, 150 miles away, with a population of 4,500, about the size of Winnemucca.

Not very much has happened at McDermitt since Peter Skene Ogden, the great trailblazer, entered Nevada here in 1828. The town was named for Col. Charles McDermitt, shot during a skirmish with the Indians. Fort McDermitt, long ago torn down, probably was the loneliest outpost in the country. From 1865 to 1880, McDermitt was a station on the old stage road to the Idaho mines. It is the present sit of the McDermitt Indian Reservation — but there are few Indians around.

YOUR YEAR'S MEAT—The 173 pounds of meat averaged per year by Americans is on display at the National Live Stock Exposition in Chicago. Displayers are Bernadette Guzzi, 15, and (right) Margaret Guzzi, 18, of Downers Grove, Ill. The National Live Stock and Meat Board comes up with the 173-pound figure.

Canada Fears Identity Overshadowed by U.S.

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following third of five articles explores where American influence is greatest in Canada and areas of irritation.

By MAX HARRELSON
OTTAWA (AP) — The border between the United States and Canada often has been described as the longest undefended frontier in the world. It also has been called "the unequal border."

Some Canadians think the latter is more meaningful, since it calls attention to the disparity in the size and influence of the two neighbors — a factor which has an important bearing on their relations.

It is not fear of a military attack that bothers Canadians; it is the constantly growing shadow of the giant south of the border.

There is a serious concern that Canada's identity may be blurred — or even destroyed — by a gradual and unconscious extension of U.S. influence and culture. There undoubtedly is national pride involved.

Everywhere Canadians see evidence of creeping U.S. penetration — magazines, books, motion pictures, television shows, automobiles, even the same kinds of soap powders and cake mixes.

Canadians are generally friendly with visiting Americans and thousands cross into the United States daily. But they don't like to be told that Canadians and Americans are just alike, or that we don't consider them as foreigners.

Millions of Canadians have lived in the United States or have relatives there. And there are tens of thousands of American citizens, or former American citizens, living in Canada.

In Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island alone there are an estimated 30,000 who were either American-born or born of American parents.

In Calgary, Alberta, there is another huge American colony. The lieutenant governor of Alberta and the head of the Calgary Rotary Club were born in the United States. The publisher of the Calgary Herald, Frank Swanson, attended the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism.

Swanson wrote a column in the Calgary Herald deploring what he said was the lack of understanding of Canada in the United States. He illustrated his point with a story about a girl crossing the border from the United States for her first visit to Canada.

She stuck her head out of the train window and said: "Good-by, God. I'm going to Canada."

When the Toronto Board of Trade heard about this it decided to investigate. It found that she had uttered these words all right, but that the meaning had been altered in the telling. It was clear, the investigators concluded, that what the girl really said was: "Good-by, God! I'm going to Canada."

Next: U.S.-Canadian ties.

Rummage Sale Slated

The ways and means committee of the Pontious EUB Church building program met recently at the church.

Final plans were made for a rummage sale to be held Dec. 12 at the Armory, E. Franklin St. Anyone with items to contribute is asked to contact Mrs. Frank Seimer, Route 3.

Powdered Juice

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — It may not be long before powdered grapefruit juice goes on sale in the supermarkets.

U. S. Department of Agriculture researchers have developed the product, a powder which dissolves in cold water, and are market testing it.

They believe it will require little, if any refrigeration.

Frisco Merchants Hurt by Movie House Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Downtown merchants are feeling the pinch of a labor dispute that has kept two-thirds of San Francisco's movie houses closed for nearly three weeks.

'Drinking' Orange Trees

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Orange trees love water as well as ducks do.

Plant physiologists at the Florida Agricultural Experiment Station found that a healthy 15-year-old orange tree weighs 1,000 pounds and half the weight is water.

A 15-year-old tree can produce 500 pounds of fruit a year — and the fruit is 80 per cent water.

The scientists reported each citrus tree "drinks" 30 to 50 gallons of water a day.

Chevy Chase, Md., traditionally has been watched over by one combination policeman-night watchman. The first officer also doubled as lamplighter.

Hard hit by the theater shutdown are restaurants and bookstores, cigar stands and taverns.

Merchants who depend on movie-goers for a healthy portion of their nocturnal trade report business dropoffs of up to 50 per cent.

The economic effects of the dispute can be seen most clearly on Market Street, the city's garish main drag where hot-dog stands and small shops nestle in the shadows of darkened theater marquees.

The throngs of people usually present on the street until the early hours have thinned visibly since the shutdown took effect Nov. 14.

Clarence F. Delano, executive vice president of the Golden Gate Restaurant Association, which numbers most of the small Market Street restaurants among its members, estimates

Traveling Justice

PORTALES, N. M. (AP)—An Elida justice of the peace has to travel 24 miles here to appear before another JP, after he had been cited for making an illegal turn.

William Crume, 71, made the trip. He appeared before JP Eldon Whitton and was fined $10 plus $7.50 court cost.

Crume said it was the first time he has had to appear in court in the 51 years he has been driving.

The two are the only justices of peace in Roosevelt County.

the strike has caused a 50 per cent dropoff in business.

"Our people are hurting. There's no doubt about it. When people don't come downtown to see the shows they just don't eat out."

Several store owners who used to stay open after midnight now are closing in mid-evening.

A walkout by projectionists at the Coronet Theater on Nov. 13 triggered the shutdown. The projectionists were protesting failure of the theater owners to present a new contract. The old contract expired last August.

The San Francisco Theater Owners' Association, representing 40 of the city's 59 theaters, retaliated the next day by closing down.

Formal negotiations between the owners and the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees opened Monday.

MEDAL OF HONOR — Capt. Roger Donlon (above) of Saugerties, N. Y., has been recommended for the Medal of Honor for heroism in South Viet Nam. Donlon, 30, would be the first to receive the nation's highest award for valor in battle since the Korean strife.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Wednesday, Dec. 2, the 337th day of 1964. There are 29 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1823, President James Monroe made a statement of policy in a message to Congress which since has been known as the Monroe Doctrine. Its major point was that European nations should not attempt to expand in the Western Hemisphere and that the United States would not interfere in European affairs.

On this date

In 1804, Napoleon I crowned himself emperor of France.

In 1816, the first savings bank in the United States opened in Philadelphia.

In 1859, John Brown was hanged at Charlestown, Va., for leading the raid on Harper's Ferry.

In 1863, ground was broken for the Union Pacific Railway.

In 1942, a demonstration of nuclear chain reaction was given in Chicago; it marked the beginning of the Atomic Age.

Ten years ago — President Dwight Eisenhower rejected a proposal for blockading Red China, declaring it would be an act of war.

Five years ago — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in an address in Budapest, blamed the 1956 Hungarian revolt on former Stalinist leaders and defended Moscow's part in suppressing it.

One year ago — The Ecumenical Council ended its working meetings in its second session in Rome.

Dudley Nixed U.S. Center In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Willard P. Dudley, administrator of Ohio's Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, says he refused to accept a federal government proposal to set up an anti-poverty program here because "the planning is ahead of the program and the skilled people needed to staff it."

The Bureau of Employment Security made the offer, providing for a Youth Opportunity Center, which would have required 51 staff members, Dudley said Monday. Some of the staff members would have been college graduates trained in eight-week courses this summer at Ohio and Western Reserve Universities. But experienced personnel would have been drained from state programs, Dudley added.

"After the job seekers go through this center," said Dudley, "they have to go next to the state unemployment offices, which would have been weakened by loss of key management members transferred to the center. I couldn't see it."

Dudley was to open today a BUC Youth Services Division, financed entirely with state funds. It will incorporate the Apprenticeship Information Center which will be supported by anti-poverty plan money from the U. S. Government.

Wheat Price Drop Offered By Germany

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—West Germany offered Tuesday to lower its wheat price from $3.20 to $2.99 a bushel, effective in July 1967, if the Common Market will pay West German farmers $525 million over a three-year period to compensate for their losses.

Reaction was cool at a meeting of the six-nation bloc, which is trying to standardize grain prices and farm policies among the members. But Agriculture Minister Edgar Pisani of France, which has been forcing the issue, said "we now can start the discussions."

The offer by the West German government, whose subsidized grain prices are the highest among the six, fell considerably short of meeting the terms of a suggestion by the Common Market's executive commission.

The commission had proposed a price of $2.91 a bushel, with compensation to West German farmers on falling scale beginning at $140 million for the first year.

Marijuana Grew In Roof Garden

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Narcotics agents said they watched while Phillip Weinschenker, 20, cultivated his roof garden. Then they confiscated his marijuana farm and placed him under arrest.

Weinschenker pleaded guilty to setting out 395 marijuana plants in baskets on the roof of his utility room. He was fined $1,000 and placed on three years' probation in Criminal Court Monday.

Solons Pass 2 Ordinances, Study Pay Raise Request

Two ordinances were given City Council approval during a short legislative session last night.

One of the measures reduced a performance bond previously submitted by the White Development Co. to guarantee installation of certain facilities in the firm's Sherwood Subdivision.

The ordinance authorized the original bond of $12,500 to be reduced to $500. This action was taken after Council was assured that all conditions imposed by the bond had been met by the White Brothers firm, except installation of curbs and gutters along certain streets. Service Director Harlow Arledge and Councilman Joe Bell said the $500 bond would more than cover the cost of work yet to be done.

Arledge said work already completed in the Subdivision meets his approval. He has indicated the remaining curbs and gutters will be installed when weather permits.

THE SECOND ordinance authorized the appropriation for $175 to be used for the employment of clerical help in the City Auditor's office for this year.

In other business, the solons

Roger Cloud May Be Next Ohio Auditor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The veteran leader of Republicans in the Ohio House, Rep. Roger Cloud of De Graff in Logan County, says his future plans are indefinite except to complete his job as speaker in the 1965 session.

Of reports that he may be in line for appointment as state auditor, Cloud said Tuesday: "Well, I haven't given it any thought."

State Auditor Roger W. Tracy died last month. Former Adj. Gen. Chester W. Goble was named to the post, but it is understood he will resign whenever Gov. James A. Rhodes wants to appoint someone who will run in 1966 for a full four-year term as auditor.

Cloud, a successful farmer-contractor, reportedly is high on the list for consideration. He admits that Rhodes mentioned the possibility to him some time ago, and he has indicated previously that this will be his final term in the House.

Cloud was re-elected without opposition last month to a ninth term in the House, and later was chosen for a fifth term as GOP leader. He again will be House speaker because Republicans have the majority in the 1965 House.

FBI Checks Jets For Bullet Holes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The FBI is investigating reports that several planes at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base have been struck recently by bullets from a high-powered rifle.

The base spokesman said at least one of the planes hit was a Strategic Air Command B52 jet bomber. He said the planes were hit in the vicinity of the base but the shootings were not noticed until the bullet holes were discovered after the planes landed.

Cincinnati Hospital Costs $14 Million

CINCINNATI (AP)—The cost of Cincinnati's new nine-story General Hospital will be $13,749,814, according to the total of low bids submitted Tuesday.

Construction on the 650-bed hospital is expected to take around three years. Frank Meser and Sons Inc. of Cincinnati was the apparent low bidder for the general construction with a bid of $8,046,200.

The tiny village of Ocracoke, N. C., at the toe of a slim island on the stormy Outer Banks, still depends on the sea for its income, for food and as a lure to visitors seeking quiet, rest and sport. There life moves at a leisurely pace.

referred a letter request concerning pay raises for Municipal Court personnel to the Safety and Finance Committees. The request was submitted by Mrs. Naomi L. Houghton, court clerk.

Mrs. Houghton requested an increase of $35 per month for herself and $15 per month for the court's other three employees. She asked for the hikes to become effective Jan. 1, 1965.

The clerk's letter pointed out that an increase in the clerk and bailiff salaries would be shared 60 per cent by the city and 40 per cent by the county. Increase in deputy clerk salaries would be borne 100 per cent by the city.

Mrs. Houghton also noted an increased work load in her office. According to her figures, at the end of October a total of 668 more criminal cases were filed than during the entire calendar year of 1963. She said gross receipts during the same period increased by $11,720.06, resulting in the disbursement of $53,564.83 to the city.

Solon John Jenkins reported that his Safety Committee will meet with fire department personnel to lay the groundwork for purchase of new firefighting equipment. He said the panel hopes to have initial legislation in the near future.

COUNCILMAN Bell informed the lawmakers that his Service Committee is working toward setting up an informative session for members of a recently appointed North Storm Sewer equalization board.

The equalizing board, named at the last Council meeting, is composed of Winship Story, Edgar Webb and Robert Wilson. The panel will officially meet Jan. 13 to hear approximately 73 objections that have been filed by property owners in the sewer district.

The pre-hearing session will be designed to familiarize board members with the project. Bell said the review possibly can be

Thou Shalt Not a Mitt Larger than 38 Inches

HOUSTON (AP) — Baseball's ranking intellects have resolved the momentous question of what constitutes a legal catcher's mitt. While nothing is likely to overshadow the celebration that will surely follow such an event, there is still some curiosity about where Frank Howard and Bo Belinsky, among others, will be playing next season.

Despite expressions of doubt by some club executives, these rumbles persist at the winter baseball meetings:

Howard, the 6-foot-7 outfielder of the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be traded to Houston for third-baseman Bob Aspromonte and pitcher Ken Johnson, or to Milwaukee for third baseman Ed Mathews, or to Kansas City for outfielder Rocky Colavito.

Belinsky, the calamity-prone left-hander of the Los Angeles Angels, will be traded for one or more Philadelphia Phillies.

There was also a rumor Tuesday that San Francisco would trade pitchers Bob Shaw and Billy O'Dell to the New York Yankees for catcher-outfielder John Blanchard. But that one was vigorously denied by both clubs.

About the catcher's mitt: The playing rules committee outlawed the Big Bertha used to catch some knuckleball pitchers. The committee decided the mitt may be no more than 38 inches in circumference.

A conventional mitt is 33 to 34 inches. The Big Berthas, described by committee chairman Charles Segar as "burlesque gloves," are up to 45 inches.

Said Houston General Manager

ERIC FENSTERMAKER

Area Cager Listed on Otterbein '5'

Eric (Rick) Fenstermaker, a freshman at Otterbein College is a member of the Otterbein basketball team which opens its season Dec. 5th against Central State at Wilberforce.

Fenstermaker, a 5-7, 165 pound freshman from Williamsport, has made an impressive showing in pre-season drills according to Head Coach Curt Tong. While all five starters are returning from last year's squad which had an overall record of 16-5, Coach Tong believes Fenstermaker will be a real addition to the squad of 1964-65.

Fenstermaker was twice named to the All-Pickaway County cage team picked by county coaches. He paced the Williamsport Deers to a co-championship in the regional tournament at Teays Valley High School.

During his senior cage campaign, he averaged 17.9 points per game.

45s Go Modern Now Its Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — There is no longer such a team as the Houston Colt .45s.

Now they're the Houston Astros.

Club President Roy Hofheinz announced the name change Tuesday night.

"We think it is in keeping with the situation in which we are the space capital of the world," he said. "The name was taken from the stars and indicates we are on the ascendency."

The nation's Manned Spacecraft Center, a training facility for astronauts, is 25 miles from Houston.

Bluffton Man Leads Left-handed Golfers

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Ken Mast of Bluffton, Ohio, went into the second round of the National Left-handed Golfers' Open today holding a one-stroke lead.

Mast fired a par 71 in the first round Tuesday, carding three birdies and three bogeys in the 6,608-yard DeSoto Lakes course. He has played in all five of the opens but never finished in the money.

Tigers Open League Race Friday at Hurricane Gym

The Circleville High School basketball team travels to Wilmington Friday night to open the 1964-65 South Central Ohio League season.

And with the opening of the SCO campaign, the Tiger cagers will be attempting what only three other CHS basketball teams have accomplished — bring the league crown, or at least a share of it, back to Roundtown.

During the 1949-50 season the CHS cage team brought home the first and lone undisputed crown ever owned locally.

Then in 1956-57 season, the Tigers shared the crown with Wilmington, Washington C. H. and Hillsboro. That was the year Wilmington started a seven-year domination of the loop.

AGAIN in the 1959-60 winter season, the Red and Black earned a share of the crown, along with Wilmington, Washington C. H. and Greenfield.

A pre-season poll of the South Central Ohio League sportswriters and newscasters found Circleville picked to finish second in the league behind Miami Trace.

The seniors on the squad, playing together under Don Neff as sophomores reservists two years ago, posted the best win-loss record in the league, taking the SCO junior varsity title.

In the two opening performances, the Red and Black was edged by Chillicothe, 72-67, and then were trounced by Lancaster.

However, Circleville was not alone as no SCO team has won a game yet this season.

The Miami Trace Panthers were handled by Pleasant View, 63-53, in a game played Thanksgiving Eve. Hillsboro was dumped by a strong Portsmouth team, 84-37, on Friday.

ON SATURDAY Madison South trimmed Washington C. H., 68-56; Xenia Central blasted Wilmington, 73-48; and Dayton Stivers rolled over Greenfield, 71-50.

Circleville's coach Don Neff reports that attitude has been good in practice this week in spite of the two opening losses suffered by his cagers.

He pointed out that against Wilmington for the first time this year the Tigers will be on an even footing as far as size is concerned.

Wilmington has only two returning lettermen, neither of whom started last year. They are Bob Williams, 6-0, and John McElwee, 5-10.

Some of the boys most heavily counted on for the current edition of The Hurricane cage team are up from the reserve squad. Among them are Mike Cowman who led the scoring and rebounding in the opening game with 23 points and six rebounds, and Dave Carter who scored 10 points from his center position.

Wilmington's basketball coach is Al Burger. He is back for his second year at the helm of the Hurricane. He also served one year at Greenfield McClain.

IN OTHER league competition Friday, Miami Trace entertained Hillsboro and Washington C. H. hosts Greenfield McClain.

Trace, in spite of its opening loss to Pleasant View, is picked by the SCO sportswriters and the league coaches as the pre-season favorite.

Although only one starter is back from last year's team, Trace has five lettermen and boasts the best height in the league. Five members of the team are over 6-3 and only three members measure less than 6-0.

Hillsboro is playing this year without the services of All-Ohio center Fred Cluff. Also gone is Terry McConaughy. This pair accounted for 43 points of the 60 averaged by Hillsboro in each game played.

Although two Indian lettermen stand 6-2, the balance of the squad is much smaller.

Washington C. H. will field a team with an abundance of experience. There are eight seniors on the roster.

GARY CARD, 5-11 guard and Gary Knisley, 6-4, junior forward, lead the list of returning Blue Lion vets. Larry Mowery, a 5-11 guard, Rob Rodenfels, 6-3 forward and Steve Rhoades, 6-1 center, round out the starting quintet.

However, Rodenfels has been slowed with an ankle injury.

The Blue Lions are coached by Lewis Morgan.

Greenfield has three lettermen under first year mentor Dale Allen. Jim Garrison, Don Ditch and Ralph Nooks will form the nucleus of this year's unit.

Although the McClain cagers, like many of the other teams in the league, lack height, they have a home floor advantage that few other teams can boast.

Overall, the league this year appears to be well balanced. Only Miami Trace has good height. Last year's champion, Pleasant View, is now playing in the South Suburban league.

UC Bearcats Pick Captains

CINCINNATI (AP) — Quarterback Brig Owens and center Jerry Mopper have been named honorary co-captains of the 1964 University of Cincinnati football squad, which recorded an 8-2 season in winning the Missouri Valley Conference.

Owens and Mopper were named Tuesday night at the annual awards banquet. UC had a policy during the season of naming different captains each game.

Owens and backs Al Nelson and Errol Prishy shared the "most consistent and efficient offense back" award. The three seniors accounted for nearly 70 per cent of UC's ground yardage.

AFL Attendance Hits New High

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League has set an attendance record of 1,263,186 in 47 games as compared to the old mark of 1,241,741 set in a full 54-game schedule last season.

The two clubs that have completed their home seasons have set new marks. New York drew 298,972 for seven home games, compared to 103,550 last year at the Polo Grounds. Buffalo drew 225,724 to 209,719 in 1963.

Jimmy Adair, Clint Courtney and Jim Busby have been signed by the Houston Colt .45's as coaches for the 1965 season.

Canada Cup Awaits Pros

Nicklaus, Arnie
Defend Crown

KAANAPALI, Maui Island, Hawaii (AP) — The Canada Cup matches, often called the world's most distinguished floating golf show, get under way Thursday in the spectacular setting of this gem-like island.

Thirty-four teams from 32 nations, along with Hawaii and Puerto Rico, begin the 72-hole event over a course as tough as the players have encountered in the 11 previous matches.

The site is the Royal Kaanapali Golf Course, 7,179 yards of bright green earth nestled at the foot of the west Maui mountain range.

Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer represent the United States as the defending Canada Cup champion team — and Nicklaus will defend the Individual trophy, both awards won last year in Paris.

Palmer is representing the United States for the fourth time but the American ace, who has won everything else of national and international consequence, has yet to win this one.

The Yankees are favored, but they are confronted with stern opposition from Spain, which finished second a year ago; South Africa, anchored by Gary Player and Canada's Al Balding and George Knudson.

Sayers, DeLong Divide Leagues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Money talks — and makes college coaches scream.

It spoke to Kansas halfback Gale Sayers and Tennessee guard Steve DeLong, giving the Chicago Bears of the National Football League a split Tuesday with the rival American League as the multi-million-dollar pro football war continued.

Sayers and DeLong — both picked on the first round of the NFL draft by the Bears — went different ways. Chicago won the battle for Sayers against the Kansas City Chiefs but lost DeLong to the AFL's San Diego Chargers in the first major breakthrough for the younger league.

Meanwhile, both leagues came under fire from college coaches for signing futures — players who still have a year of college eligibility remaining but whose college class has graduated and thus are eligible to be drafted.

The two cases involved Los Angeles State tackle Walt Johnson, signed by the NFL's Cleveland Browns, and Arizona State halfback Larry Todd, signed by the Oakland Raiders of the AFL. Coaches from each team said they were considering official protests.

"They don't have any business signing a boy when he has a year to play," said Los Angeles State Coach Homer Beaty. "They waved so much money in the boy's face he couldn't turn it down. They have no regard for the boy or his coach."

Browns President Art Modell said "it's ridiculous" to the charge of waving money at Johnson and said Cleveland "found out he had no intention of going back to school. The Browns never have and never will take people out of school to play football."

Todd's coach, Frank Kush, charged the Raiders talked to the player throughout the season and implied this was unethical since the coaching staff was not contacted.

And we mean a lot lower. The price savings are at least 104 dollars on the six-cylinder sedan... and as much as 604 dollars on the V8 sports convertible, the Coronet 500! That's savings in black and white* and doesn't even include the famous Dodge Boys' deal. Check it out. The savingest, sellingest, full-size Dodge in history — Coronet. It's the most for the least.

Bobcat Cagers Take Sole Loss As Ohioans Drop Foreign Foes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio's college basketball teams got the infant season off to a fine start Tuesday night by winning eight of the nine games played against out-of-state teams.

Only Ohio University, of the Buckeye squads who faced non-Ohio quintets, fell—81-70 victims of Indiana.

Toledo downed Kentucky Wesleyan, 76-71; Cincinnati defeated George Washington, 80-72; Kent State walloped Wayne State, 119-80; Steubenville rolled over Marshall, 85-78; Central State smashed Anderson, 86-57; Marietta whipped Glenville State, 91-74; Muskingum knocked off West Liberty State, 79-61, and Oberlin edged Adrian, 76-73.

In the five intrastate games played Tuesday night, Capital defeated Denison, 79-53, and Akron smashed Baldwin-Wallace, 83-62, in Ohio Conference contests; Cedarville slipped by Rio Grande, 74-69; Hiram bounced Fenn, 91-75, and Youngstown edged Ashland, 43-41.

Although a couple of Ohio teams have already put two or three games under their belts, Tuesday night's card presented the first big cage night with games on 14 different floors.

In the Ohio U-Indiana fray at Bloomington, the first-stringers for Indiana got off to a ragged start and substitutes kept the Hoosiers in contention in the first half. Ohio U. began falling behind in the second half as Indiana stayed on top the rest of the way. Don Hilt paced the Ohioans with 27 points.

Hotshooting and good backboard control were the deciding factors in Toledo's homecourt victory over Kentucky Wesleyan. The Rockets, paced by Bob Aston's 18 points, went ahead in the first half and never fell behind.

The 119 points scored by Kent State against Wayne State set a Kent field house record and team scoring mark.

Steubenville fended off a late Marshall surge in beating the Big Green on the West Virginians' floor. John Hummel led the Barons with 3 points, 17 of them in the second half.

The Capital and Akron victories gave the teams the first night lead in the big Ohio Conference. None of the other loop, squads has seen conference action yet.

The University of Michigan Wolverines, ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press pre-season poll, opened the college basketball season impressively Tuesday night with a 92-70 romp against Ball State.

The fourth-ranked Davidson Wildcats, the fifth-ranked Duke Blue Devils and the ninth-ranked San Francisco Dons, the only other teams in the Top Ten to see action, similarly got off on the right foot.

Davidson came from behind to defeat Wake Forest 95-88, Duke whipped Virginia Tech 98-63 and San Francisco downed Oregon State 66-58.

Oregon State's setback marked the coaching debut of Paul Valenti for the Beavers. Johnny Oldham also suffered a defeat in his coaching debut at Western Kentucky. The Hilltoppers were upset by Belmont, Tenn., 52-50.

Other new coaches won their first games. Notre Dame beat Lewis 99-87 for Johnny Dee, South Carolina downed Erskine 76-59 for Frank McGuire, Iowa tramped South Dakota 93-70 for Ralph Miller and Marquette drubbed St. Thomas 69-49 for Al McGuire.

Cazzie Russell with 33 points led the Michigan attack that crushed Ball State. Big 6-foot-8 Fred Hetzel tossed in 28 points as Davidson wiped out an early 10-point Wake Forest lead to down the Deacons. Hack Tison's 24 points sparked Duke over Virginia Tech and Russ Gumina led San Francisco over Oregon State with 21 points.

Minnesota, expected to provide stern opposition for Michigan in the Big Ten, crushed South Dakota State 101-55. St. Louis, favored to win the Missouri Valley Conference, slaughtered North Dakota State 114-50. Kansas, the Big Eight favorite, came from 14 points back to defeat Arkansas 65-60 and North Carolina, expected to contend with Duke for the Atlantic Coast Conference crown, overcame Clemson 77-59.

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Co. in a sudden decision Tuesday dropped most of its regular afternoon television programming for live coverage of the Senate committee investigating the Bobby Baker case.

The witness was insurance man Don Reynolds who was not saying much that was new to newspaper readers. But the testimony, in Reynolds' excessively polite Southern drawl, concerning strange business deals in high places plus the peppery wrangling between Democratic and Republican senators was both fascinating and disillusioning.

The full treatment as served up by NBC was infinitely more illuminating than the highlights of the day's testimony chosen for a special report by CBS in the late afternoon.

Also highly illuminating was NBC's news special Tuesday night on Viet Nam and what narrator Chat Huntley called "a mad war." Color film dramatically illustrated the difference between the plush, easy life in Saigon, and the Viet Cong terror nearby in rice paddies and villages where each day men are ambushed and die as the guerrillas strike—and disappear.

The Hour was well done and quite shocking in its frank look at the situation.

Diane Lennon, whose marriage and retirement from show business reduced the singing Lennon sisters from a quartet to a trio, has changed her mind. She'll be back as a Lawrence Welk regular from Dec. 12 on.

Recommended tonight: "CBS reports," 7:30-8:30 EST — "Five Faces of Tokyo," the Japanese capital seen through various eyes; "The Danny Kaye Show," CBS, 10-11 — with Art Carney and Pearl Bailey as guest stars.

Floyd Has Complex Plan To Get Liston in Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson still nurses an ambition to beat Sonny Liston in a heavyweight title fight.

Patterson would have to cash in a wild parlay to make it come true since neither he nor Liston is champion.

The former two-time heavyweight ruler has it all figured out.

All he has to do is beat Charlie Powell in San Juan, P.R., Dec. 12; beat Canadian George Chuvalo in Madison Square Garden, Jan. 29; then get a fight with Cassius Clay, if the loud one still has some piece of the championship, and win that one, too.

Then, presto, in again with Liston to gain vengeance for his two first-round knockouts by Sonny.

For Chuvalo, life is much simpler.

"I think I can knock out Patterson," he said Monday. "Then I'll be happy to take on Ernie Terrell or anyone else who can draw some money."

The fighters, who had agreed to the match a couple of weeks ago, appear at press luncheon where the signing was announced and the ballyhoo campaign launched.

While Chuvalo said he would be happy to meet Terrell in a possible World Boxing Association heavyweight title fight, Patterson declined to say whether he would fight Terrell.

"It's up to my manager," he said, and then sat down next to his manager, Don Florio.

The question was put to Florio.

"No comment," he said.

The reason for the question was the shooting of contender Cleveland Williams by a policeman in Houston last Saturday night. Williams probably won't be able to fight for six months.

Williams, ranked second by the WBA, was supposed to fight Terrell, the No. 1 contender from Philadelphia, for the WBA's vacant title in January. Then the winner, according to the WBA's plans, was to meet the Patterson-Chuvalo victor within 90 days.

The WBA stripped Clay of recognition for signing to meet Liston in a return fight. New York, Massachusetts and many foreign countries still consider Clay as champion.

When Danny Murtaugh resigned as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates his entire coaching staff of Len Levy, Sam Narmon, Frank Oceak, Don Osborn and Mickey Vernon was released.

LATE WALKERS

Q. Our little girl, who is 20 months old, has not yet learned to walk without help. Could this mean that she is mentally retarded?

A. Although gross motor development (sitting, standing, walking) is the easiest skill to assess, it is least reliable in evaluating intelligence. Most normal children walk independently by 12 to 17 months of age but many normal youngsters walk considerably sooner or later. While it is true that many mentally retarded children are late in learning to walk, exceptions are frequent. It would be advisable, of course, to have your youngster examined by a pediatrician.

MENSTRUATION AT LATE AGE

Q. I am 56 and still menstruating. Is this normal?

A. Accurate information about the normal menopause is not too easy to find. The oldest woman to have given birth in the modern era was alleged to be 63. If true, ovulation and normal menstruation may continue into the sixth decade of life. However, a woman who is still "menstruating" at age 56 should have a complete examination by a physician. Many cases of "late" menstruation turn out to be medical problems which need correction.

India Welcomes Pope Paul VI Without Trouble

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Pope Paul VI arrived today on the longest mission ever undertaken by a pontiff, was welcomed by 100,000 Indians, and said "We come as a pilgrim, a pilgrim of peace, of joy and love."

There was no single incident, although police had been prepared for hostile acts from fanatical Hindu sects opposed to the papal visit to attend the 38th International Eucharistic Congress.

Wearing a white skull cap, a red silk stole and a red brocade cape at the end of the 4,000-mile journey, Pope Paul walked down a 40-foot red carpet spread from the ramp of the plane.

Waiting to greet him were Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, a Hindu who was said at first to have opposed the Pope's visit to Hindu India; and Vice President akir Hussain, a Moslem.

News Briefs

MOSCOW (AP)— Soviet courts henceforth will presume a defendant innocent until he is proved guilty, Justice Aleksander Gorkin stated Tuesday in an article in Izvestia, the Soviet government paper.

Gorkin turned aside a view of conservatives, published last summer by a prosecutor, that "the court only verifies to what degree an accused person who has been brought to court by the prosecutor is guilty, and whether this criminal deserves punishment."

Instead, Gorkin cited the Soviet criminal code stating that only legally constituted courts can find accused persons guilty or innocent in criminal actions.

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson has disclosed that 12 British nuclear scientists and government officials have been removed from their jobs for security reasons since 1950.

Wilson told the House of Commons Tuesday the men were removed because they were foreign-born, had relatives behind the Iron Curtain, or for both reasons.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Board of Conservation is pitting shark against shark in an effort to steer them away from commercial fishing nets in the Florida keys.

Sharks are caught with heavy baited hooks and a flat board is attached to the line. The board slows the wounded shark and tires him. Other sharks, smelling blood, attack their weakened comrade.

Commercial fishermen on both the Atlantic and Gulf sides of the keys have reported uncommonly big schools of sharks tearing into their nets in search of food.

VIETIANE, Laos (AP) — The Laotian army recaptured Tuesday the positions lost Monday to the Pathet Lao in the Tha Thom sector and killed 37 Pathet Lao soldiers in the battle, Western military sources reported.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic U.S. Sen. Stephen M. Young filed a report with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown today showing receipts and expenditures of $3,349 in his successful campaign for re-election last Nov. 3.

Young's Washington, D. C., committee reported receipts of $4,809, expenditures of $4,302 and a balance of $507.

Congressman-at-large Robert Taft Jr., Young's unsuccessful Republican opponent, reported personal receipts and expenditures of $598. Taft's campaign committee has yet to report.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The "daddy" of all those recent ribbon-snippings for new Ohio superhighway segments took place just 10 years ago, and state officials paused to commemorate the occasion Tuesday.

Pickaway Farmers May Buy Grain At Reduced Prices

Congressman William Harsha announced today that the U. S. Department of Agriculture has approved his request to offer government owned feed grain at reduced prices to eligible farmers in five counties in the 6th district where drought and damage to feed crops by insect pests and disease have greatly reduced feed supplies for the winter months.

The counties of Pickaway, Highland, Pike, Ross and Scioto were designated. Eligible farmers in these counties can purchase available feed grains through the Commodity Credit Corporation for assistance in the preservation and maintenance of foundation herds of livestock.

The program will be administered by the ASCS County units. These offices are charged with the responsibility for determining eligibility of producers for assistance.

Goldwater, Ike, Nixon Plan Summit Talk on GOP Future

EDITOR'S NOTE — In this exclusive AP interview, Sen. Barry Goldwater tells of plans for a GOP summit meeting and gives his views on demands by some Republicans that the party chairman be replaced. Goldwater says he does not plan to grant additional interviews or hold news conferences.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today he plans to meet soon with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard M. Nixon for a "general discussion" of the Republican party's future course.

The defeated GOP presidential nominee said in an interview on his return to Washington from Phoenix, Ariz., that he doesn't know where the summit conference discussion will lead. But he indicated he is willing to cooperate with the former president and the former vice president in trying to bring peace among the bickering factions of the Republican party.

Goldwater said the meeting originally had been scheduled for next Thursday at Eisenhower's office at Gettysburg, Pa., but had to be delayed because of Nixon's trip to Japan. He added, however, he hopes it can be fitted into the schedules of all three principals before his return to Arizona next week.

Goldwater made it clear he would encourage the formation of the kind of advisory council suggested by some GOP governors and other party leaders to bring all factions into the formation of future party policy.

"I tried to get Milton Eisenhower's group to continue its work," he said. "I thought they were making some headway."

Eisenhower, brother of the former president and head of Johns Hopkins University, is chairman of the Republican Critical Issues Council. The council, a panel of leading Republicans, issued GOP policy statements through special task forces during the recent presidential campaign.

Goldwater remained adamant in his opposition to the replacement of Republican National Chairman Dean Burch, his personal choice for the job after the San Francisco nominating convention.

"They are not going to throw Burch out," he said. "They don't have the votes."

This opposition by the presidential nominee to any replacement of the national chairman at this time was concurred in by congressional Republican leaders who think it is too early to take such drastic action.

Goldwater said he regards himself now as "a free man," able to speak out on issues of paramount interest to the nation. He indicated he no longer feels any of the restraints he implied had been placed on him as a presidential candidate in dealing with international issues.

Goldwater indicated his criticism may center on President Johnson's course in the South Viet Nam hostilities.

"We're in war there and it's time that the American people found out just how deeply we are involved," he said. "I pointed that out in the campaign and I am going to speak out on it some more."

Asked when he intended to "speak out," the Arizona senator replied he will do so when his newspaper column is resumed in January. He suspended publication of this column when he became an announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination early this year.

Goldwater, who has not met with reporters except for a brief news conference in Jamaica, said he is going over to the side of the writing men and does not intend to have additional news conferences or interviews.

The senator, bronzed from his Jamaica vacation and a subsequent rest at his Phoenix home, gave no indications that he was downcast by his landslide defeat by Johnson.

"They can't discount the fact that 27 million Americans voted for me," he said.

When his interviewer noted that other Republicans contended this did not represent wholly GOP conservative strength but included Republicans who did not necessarily agree with his views but opposed Johnson and his program, Goldwater replied cryptically:

"That's what they say. I think the conservatives are going to be heard from."

Republican governors, meeting in Denver this weekend, may come up with some recommendations for realigning the party organization. Burch has called a Jan. 21-22 meeting of the National Committee in Chicago at which he plans to ask for a vote of confidence.

The newest demand for replacement of Burch came Tuesday from Charles Percy, defeated in his race for governor of Illinois Percy, the 1960 GOP convention platform chairman, said "we must have a change in command at the national level."

Percy proposed setting up a national policy committee. He suggested that it be headed by Gov. Robert Smylie of Idaho, Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky or Rep. Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio.

Senate Republican leaders showed no enthusiasm for Percy's suggestions.
